

You want to find a way to get your employees motivated and revved up for success, but you don't have a penny to spare. You don't need one. Contrary to what both managers and employees believe, as long as a basic fair wage is offered, motivation can come from a wide variety of non-monetary sources. First I'm going to ask you to analyze your workplace using some very specific measures. If you're willing to step out of your comfort zone and get real, then the ideas I share with you will work with the right people onboard. This short booklet isn't going to take up much of your time, but it will require you to commit to making changes that will create an extremely loyal staff who is dedicated to your success because they'll feel as if they have a personal interest in the company - something that's probably lacking with your business right now.
