

Raj grabbed the cell phone; but, instead of tossing it through the window, hit the "call" button. A moment later, we all heard a voice saying, "Child Abuse Hotline; may I help you?" We sat there horrified; it was as though Satan himself had suddenly materialized in our midst. All except Raj; not intimidated, he proceeded to yell at the phone in a language we couldn't understand. Then he "hung up" on them, and tossed the phone through the window. We all waited to see what Bob would do. He simply ignored Raj, and asked Chris, "What'd he say?" Chris responded, "Foolishness is bound in the heart of a child, but the rod of correction shall drive it far from him." Bob asked, "That's all?" Chris replied, "Yeah, Bob, that's all he said." Then Bob asked Chris what language it was; Chris told him that it was Malayam, the local language in Kerala. Next Bob asked Chris, "What's going to happen?" Chris replied, "Look, Bob, no one at the local CPS office speaks Malayalam. (No kidding?) So, first, they'll have to figure out what language it is; then, they'll have to locate a translator. Then, they'll have to figure out who made the call. It'll take them another two weeks to find out who the cell phone's registered to. Of course, if they'd use their heads - there are only four people in the entire county who speak Malayalam, and we've been giving their names out on our web casts; so it's not real hard to figure out. But they're scared of us, Bob. So, they'll take their time. Three weeks from now, they'll get a notice from the phone company, saying it's your phone. At that point, they'll decide, quite plausibly, that the phone call didn't actually accuse you of mistreating (he would not say the word "abusing") Raj. So they'll decide there's really no reason to do an investigation, and they'll ignore it." Bob asked, "Nothing's going to happen?" Chris nodded, "That's right, Bob. Every one of them really does believe - correctly, I might add - that if he tried to open an investigation of us, God would strike him dead. So no one will even suggest doing it." This is the twenty-eighth volume of a more extensive saga, which traces the course of Billy and his friends as they struggle through the years of adolescence, and should be required reading for every adolescent boy, his parents, and all those who seek to influence him. Sic Semper Tyrannis is a memoir about a time, not so long past, when men were free, religious values were taken seriously. and parents were allowed to pass on the cultural heritage to their children without governmental interference. As David Selznick remarked concerning the Antebellum South, Look for it only in books, for it is no more than a dream remembered, a Civilization gone with the wind . . . This fictional account is the story of what might have been, had Christian parents possessed the courage of their convictions. It depicts the use of spanking and other types of physical correction, from the perspective of an adolescent boy. Twelve year old Billy Martin has been suddenly uprooted from the only home he knows, in liberal Stockholm, and sent to live with his eighteen year old brother, Bob, who has recently joined an ultra-conservative religious group in Idaho. Billy, a high-spirited youth, has been allowed to run at loose ends for his entire life, and has never experienced discipline of any kind. He now finds himself in a vastly different world. Bob immediately sets about bringing his kid brother into line, and giving him the "Biblical discipline" that he, and the other sect members, consider essential to proper child rearing. Billy strives to come to grips with the new reality. While the characters are wholly imaginary, the issues they confront are real, and threaten to undermine the very foundations of our civilization. This work does not contain any erotic material, but is a sobering assessment of today's child rearing practices in the United States and Western Europe.
