

This first of two volumes of Voegelins miscellaneous papers brings together crucial writings, published for the first time, from the early, formative period of this scholars thought. The book begins with Voegelins dissertation on sociological method, completed under the direction of Othmar Spann and Hans Kelsen at the University of Vienna in 1922. It reveals an intimate knowledge of the writings of Georg Simmel and a skillful use of insights gained from Edmund Husserls Logical Investigations and Ideas. The dissertation, and other smaller pieces written at this time, addresses problems that remained of great importance to Voegelin throughout his life: the relation of insight to language, the structure of the human being, and the humans spiritual center. They disclose both Voegelins theoretical reference points during these early years, including the thought of Henri Bergson, Othmar Spann, Georg Simmel, and Edmund Husserl, as well the young scholars remarkably independent approach to theoretical problems. Moreover, this volume includes a work that is fundamental to an understanding of Voegelins theoretical development: his extended study on the theory of governance, written between 1930 and 1932. It follows the issues that confront political society to their roots in the soul and in the souls relationship to the ground of being. The Theory of Governance and Other Miscellaneous Papers presents a meditative-exegetic study of texts from Augustine, Descartes, and Husserl, early examples of the meditations that became central to Voegelins later work. Other essays included in this volume such as Theory of Law and Political Theory as Human Science develop these theoretical insights and refine Voegelins methodological tools. This volume will be of interest to all scholars of the work of Eric Voegelin and of the refoundation of political philosophy in the twentieth century in general.
