

Wales is a part of England that operates independently as a distinct country within Britain. It is almost directly west from London, in the south to central western part of the United Kingdom. If you are telephoning Wales from abroad, the international dialing code for the UK is 44. Having dialed the country code, a town code has to be dialed omitting the 0. For example, if you want to telephone the Wales Tourist Board, 92049 9909 in Cardiff from abroad, ring +44 29 2049 9909. To obtain the services of the fire brigade, police or ambulance service in an emergency, dial 999 from any phone. In phone boxes you do not need to insert a coin first. Standard voltage in Wales and the UK is 230 AC, 50-60HZ. An adaptor or converter is necessary for Americans to use their appliances in the UK. Cardiff is the big city of Wales in the southeast corner near Bristol, England which is almost directly west of London.
